Will you be one of our graduates?

You're in the final phase of your studies and about to graduate, you've really broadened your horizons and learned a lot during your studies and now you're primed and ready to dive into the "real world". Are you planning to just dip your toes or do you have the guts to take the plunge? It comes down to this: what are you not just good at, but excellent? In what kind of job will you be able to channel your drive and what will give you the kick you need to continue growing in the years to come? The possibilities are almost endless, but what actually fits you best?

Ready, set, jump!

At GEA, we know that diamonds have to be carefully polished to sparkle in all their glory. As a market and technology leader in our business areas, we have a fundamental obligation to nurture talent and provide every opportunity for further development. That's why we recently launched a new International Graduate Program. The lucky ones to be selected will have the chance to share a once-in-a-lifetime experience over a period of 24 months.

You will enjoy individual mentoring from seasoned experts in their field, sample all aspects of the exciting world of GEA, gain international experience, learn about innovative technology at first hand, find out what you really excel at and – who knows – embark on a great career at GEA.

Get inspired by the stories of others

Read the stories of Markus, Bruno, Carolina and Henrik at gea.com/careers and you may be next in line to tell your story.

Markus Nitsche

“ When I came across GEA online and saw that they were offering this kind of program, I was really interested. I'd never heard of the company before, because as a consumer you never have any direct contact. But right away I was impressed with their huge portfolio, impressive statistics and especially their global activities. ”

Bruno Kasinof

“ This was my first real contact with the business world as well and I was immediately struck by how welcoming and helpful everyone is. ”

Carolina Andrade

“ We're all dedicated people and we all really believe in what we do, but each one of us is prepared to go the extra mile if it will help GEA and our fellow workers. Even if you don't have much time, even if it's not really part of your job, help each other and move forward together. I love that kind of spirit. ”

Henrik Boettner

“ As Head of Farm Systems Solutions, I'm now leading a team of more than 30 people, including several students and can give them the same opportunities I've had, which is something that makes me really happy. ”
